AACSB Criteria for Participating and Supporting Faculty

Five Years

In the College, faculty members are categorized as either "Participating" or "Supporting" based on their level of involvement beyond direct teaching responsibilities.

Participating faculty members engage in activities beyond teaching. This may include academic advising, research, and service commitment, member of committees, participating in the governance of the College, and participating in faculty development activities.

Supporting faculty members primarily focus on teaching and office hours. Faculty who do not meet the criteria for Participating faculty are classified as Supporting faculty.

The College predominantly relies on full-time academic staff on continuing contracts for instruction, with Participating faculty delivering the majority of teaching.
